

Conductor |

Jessica Papi is a Brazilian conductor and music educator with a distinguished academic and professional background. She holds a Master's degree in Orchestral Conducting from Florida International University (Miami, FL) and a Master's degree in Music with a specialization in Music Theory and Analysis from UNESP (State University of São Paulo, Brazil). She also pursued a Bachelor's degree in Conducting, reflecting her dedication to excellence in her craft.

Jessica has honed her skills under the mentorship of renowned conductors from around the world, demonstrating tireless commitment to her artistry. Her versatility as a musician is evident in her extensive experience conducting orchestras, instrumental ensembles, choirs, and vocal groups.

Since 2009, Jessica has been deeply committed to music education, fostering the growth of young musicians with a focus on respect, excellence, passion, and creativity. Her leadership as Assistant Conductor for the FIU Symphony Orchestra showcased her dedication to teaching and artistic collaboration.

Currently serving as Music Director at West Broward Academy, Jessica continues to inspire a new generation through her dynamic approach to music-making. Her talent and innovation have been recognized internationally, including winning a prestigious conducting competition in Atlanta, USA.

Jessica Papi's work reflects her unwavering commitment to artistic excellence and her mission to empower others through music.

For more information, visit: www.jessicapapi.com